- Consumer prices in B.C. rise 1.7% in December
- Manufacturing sales inch ahead 0.9% in November
- British Columbia welcomed 1.5% more non-resident travellers in November

Prices

- Consumer prices in British Columbia climbed 1.7% between December 2010 and December 2011. Higher prices for energy (+4.9%) and food (+3.9%) were the main drivers of inflation in December. Excluding food and energy, consumer prices in B.C. would have risen 0.9%.

The cost of food continued to rise in December as restaurant meals (+2.3%) and grocery bills (+4.9%) took a larger bite out of household budgets. Fresh vegetables (+14.1%), fresh fruits (+10.0%) and non-alcoholic beverages (+9.1%) all saw notable price hikes compared to the previous year.

Prices associated with shelter were only marginally higher (+0.4%) in December, with a slight drop in home ownership (-0.5%) tempering increases in utilities (+3.5%). Prices associated with rental accommodations inched ahead 0.9%. Household operations & furnishings (+2.5%) were also more costly.

Transportation cost consumers 2.5% more, chiefly because of higher prices for gasoline (+5.9%) and intercity transport (+7.8%). Sticker prices on motor vehicles, on the other hand, were generally lower compared to last year (-1.3%).

Prices for clothing & footwear (+3.3%) rose relatively sharply for a second straight month, largely due to an increase in the cost of women's apparel (+6.5%). Health & personal care (+0.7%), education & reading material (+1.5%) and alcohol & tobacco products (+1.6%) were all higher in December. Meanwhile, recreation took a smaller slice out of household budgets (-1.3%).

- Nationally, consumer prices rose 2.3%, with B.C. posting the lowest rate of inflation in the country. New Brunswick (+3.3%) and Newfoundland & Labrador (+3.2%) recorded the biggest jumps in prices, followed by Alberta (+2.9%) and P.E.I. (+2.9%).

The Economy

- Manufacturers in British Columbia posted a slight gain in sales (+0.9%, seasonally adjusted) in November following back-to-back monthly declines. Increased shipments by machinery (+5.4%) and paper (+3.3%) producers contributed the most in dollar terms. However, the largest month-over-month growth in sales was registered by makers of beverage & tobacco products (+8.3%) and transportation equipment (+8.2%).

Nationally, manufacturing sales rose 2.0% in November, reflecting increased shipments by producers of machinery (+13.4%), motor vehicles (+7.1%) and petroleum & coal products (+3.9%). Manufacturing sales were up in nine provinces, with Newfoundland & Labrador (+20.8%) posting the largest rate of growth. Significant contributions were also made by Alberta (+5.9%) and Ontario (+2.0%). New Brunswick (-4.0%) was the only province to see sales shrink in November.

- Wholesalers in British Columbia registered a slight (+0.3%, seasonally adjusted) increase in revenue in November. At the national level, wholesale sales slipped 0.4%. Weaker revenues in Saskatchewan (-5.0%), Alberta (-0.7%) and Ontario (-0.1%) accounted for most of the decline in dollar terms.

- Non-resident travel to Canada via British Columbia rose 1.5% (seasonally adjusted) in November. Visitor entries from the United States were up 1.1%, entirely due to a 3.1% increase the number of overnight stays. Same-day trips by Americans, on the other hand, slumped 2.9%. Total non-US entries were also higher (+2.5%), with a larger number of both European (+3.3%) and Asian (+1.6%) visits. Entries from the rest of the world were also up (+3.1%) in November.

Data Source: Statistics Canada

- The number of new motor vehicles sold in British Columbia fell 4.8% (seasonally adjusted) in November, chipping away at gains made during the previous three months. Fewer overseas-built cars and North American-built trucks rolled off dealership lots during the month and was the chief reason for the overall decline.

Nationally, new motor vehicle sales dipped 1.0%. The biggest declines in sales were experienced in Saskatchewan (-11.7%), Nova Scotia (-9.9%) and P.E.I. (-6.9%). Quebec (+2.5%) and Ontario (+0.9%) were the only provinces to post increased sales.

Data Source: Statistics Canada & BC Stats

- The number of Employment Insurance (EI) beneficiaries receiving regular benefits in British Columbia inched 1.2% (seasonally adjusted) higher between October and November. However, compared to November 2010, this number dropped 25.9% with all twenty-five population centres recording a decline in the number of recipients. Nationally, the number of people collecting regular EI benefits was down 0.3% in November.

Cancer Survivor Rates

- British Columbia's five-year relative survivor rate for all cancers taken together inched ahead from 58% in 1992/1994 to 60% in 2001/2003.<sup>1</sup> Relative survivor rates vary widely depending on the type and primary location of the cancer. Five-year relative survival rates for cancers of the pancreas (4%), esophagus (4%) and lungs (13%) were low, and were fair for colon cancer (60%). Relatively high survivor rates were recorded for women with breast cancer (88%) and men with prostate cancer (95%). Significantly improved from 1992/1994 was the five-year survivor rate for non-Hodgkin lymphoma, which had improved 12 percentage points to 63% by 2001/2003.

Oops!

In last week's Infoline, we reported on year-to-date building permit values that were subject to a calculation error. A corrected version of the bullet follows:

- Year-to-date, building permits were 6.6% lower than in the first eleven months of 2010, with decreases in six regions. Planned spending on construction projects was down in all regions of the province except North Coast (+149.8%) and Northeast (+20.6%), where a surge in the value of industrial projects teamed up with steady increases in other sectors.

Nechako (-33.2%) recorded the biggest drop, followed by Kootenay (-25.2%), Thompson/Okanagan (-24.4%), Cariboo (-24.0%) and Vancouver Island/Coast (-9.9%). Mainland/Southwest posted a more modest decline (-2.2%).

2011 Sub-Provincial Population Estimates

Provincial Estimates

BC's annual population growth slowed to 0.96% for the year spanning July 1st 2010 and June 30th 2011, with an estimated increase in population of 43,674 persons. This brought the total up to 4,573,321 persons as of July 1st, 2011.

Sub-Provincial Estimates

BC Stats produces sub-provincial population estimates using the Generalized Estimation System (GES) on an annual basis. This regression model uses symptomatic indicators like health registrations and residential hydro hook-ups to gauge population growth from one year to the next. These estimates are helpful to local and provincial government planning processes.

Regional District

Squamish-Lillooet led regional growth in 2011 (+2.6%) increasing its population by 1,035 persons. This is most likely a leftover effect from the 2010 Winter Olympic Games which drew a large number of spectators and prospective residents. Since 2006, this region has expanded by 13.0%—also the largest growth province-wide. Population growth in Northern Rockies was also strong (+1.9%), although this region has seen both ups and downs over the last five years. Central Okanagan was another regional district that has seen steady growth over the last five years (+11.8%), growing by 1.0% (1,845 persons) over the last year.

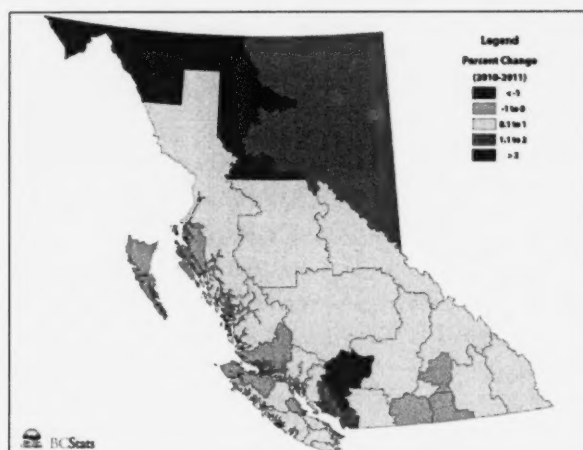

Greater Vancouver, the primary destination of choice for most immigrant landings, saw its population total jump by 30,970 persons during 2011.

Regional District Population Growth

Municipal

The coverage of BC's geographies using GES focuses on 189 areas comprised of 161 municipalities and some aggregated unincorporated areas. As expected, the former houses the largest demographic share (4,047,133 or almost 9 in every 10 persons), while the remainder (526,188) reside outside municipal boundaries.

Surrey continued to attract the most newcomers (11,027 persons), expanding by 2.4% compared to 2010, and outpacing the much larger municipality of Vancouver (8,391 persons; +1.3%) in both growth and volume. The difference in growth since 2006 in these two regions is also noticeable as Surrey expanded at almost double (+14.6%) the pace that Vancouver (+8.6%) has. Squamish's population grew 4.6% (or 820 persons) in the last year, driving the growth in the larger regional district. Langford also bolstered up the ranks (+1,113 persons; +3.8%), placing 3rd in terms of the GES-captured municipalities after Squamish in terms of growth. In fact, over the last five years, Langford has expanded its population by almost 30%, most likely due to available land capacity and its proximity to more densely-populated Victoria, the Capital's economic hub.

Saanich, one of the ten largest municipalities in BC, saw the departure of 108 persons (-0.1%) in 2011. However, since 2006 this municipality has grown 2.1%.
